Army Fliers Who Lost Lives in Plane Crashes To Head Ohio University Gold Star Roster

"WE WILL gain the inevitable victory—so help us God!" was President Roosevelt's ringing declaration. All true Americans are repeating those words with a confidence and a determination not one whit less than that of the President. But every American knows that before history records that final triumph the price thereof will be paid in the blood of many an American youth.

Indeed, already the casualty lists have assumed sizeable proportions and on them appear the names of two Ohio University men—Second Lieut. John Pershing Robbins, '41x, Jackson, and Cadet Arthur Raymond Oliver, '38, M.Ed. '41, Byesville.

Both men, members of the Army Air Corps, met death when planes they were piloting crashed. The fact that they were not in front line service at the time of their fatal accidents does not detract from the honor due their memories.

Lieut. Robbins, age 23, who attended Ohio University for three years, 1937-40, suffered fatal injuries, December 9, when his observation plane went into a dive and crashed on the beach of Skidway Island, off the coast of Georgia and near Savannah. He was rushed to an air base hospital where he died shortly after arrival.

Ohio University's first war-time casualty received his primary flight training in the Civil Pilot Training course offered by his alma mater. He entered army air corps training in November, 1940, and received his commission last July. His initial service was in ferrying light bombers from manufacturing plants on the West Coast to Eastern flying fields and concentration points. This was followed by participation in army maneuvers in the South. At the time of his death he was attached to the Nineteenth Bombardment Squadron of the Third Bombardment Group, based at Savannah.

At Ohio University, Lieut. Robbins played end on the varsity football team and was a member of Delta Tau Delta. Because of his ability on the gridiron he received an offer to play with the Cleveland Rams, one of the country's leading professional teams, but he declined the offer in order to continue his preparation for work in the air corps.

In addition to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Robbins, the deceased airman is survived by two sisters and four brothers. One brother, Herbert, Jr., recently completed a course as a ground crew man at Patterson Field, Dayton. He was under orders to depart for "foreign service" at the time of John's death and was unable to obtain leave to attend the funeral. Another brother, Stephen, is a midshipman at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, while a third brother, Thomas, is a freshman at Ohio University.

The funeral was held in Jackson December 14, and was largely attended. Floral pieces were sent by the Varsity "O" Association and the Ohio University Athletic Department. Mrs. Dewey H. Harshbarger (Ora Lively, '10), a life-long friend of the family and a former officer of the Jackson alumni chapter, represented the Alumni Association at the funeral service.

Raymond Oliver, age 26, Athens High School history teacher and assistant coach, on leave of absence to serve in the army air corps, was killed December 19 in a plane crash at Kelly Field, Texas. He enlisted last spring and left Athens two weeks before the end of the school term. He went first to a flying field in Oklahoma, then to Goodfellow Field in Texas, and subsequently to Kelly Field, where he was scheduled to graduate and receive his commission July 19, 1942. Like Lieut. Robbins, Cadet Oliver had his basic flight training in the CPT course at Ohio University.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Oliver, the air man leaves one brother and two sisters.

SERVING IN the armed and auxiliary forces of the United States are a large number of Ohio University men and women, both graduates and non-graduates. This number will be augmented daily by enlistment and selection. While it may not be possible to compile a complete list of such service men and women, the Alumni Office expects to maintain a roster as nearly complete as the cooperative efforts of all interested persons will permit.

To this end, the Alumni Secretary asks all alumni to report the names of Ohioans known by them to be engaged in military or naval service.

President James Counsels Ohio Students To Remain Calm and Train for Leadership

IMMEDIATELY UPON the declaration of war by the United States, sound, but widely disregarded, advice was offered to college men by university presidents and counsellors throughout the nation. The advice was to keep calm and to continue as long as possible with their educational preparation for whatever the future might hold for them.

Stirred by the sudden and vicious attack of the enemy, however, the first and most natural impulse of red-blooded youth was to spring to the colors. Experience, both past and current, indicates that long-range considerations and the comparative inactivity of the classroom will not hold their own against the appeal of front-line action or the opportunity to do something now.

And, so, students from Ohio University, and from all other universities, are doing what students have always done—and will do; they are giving up the thought of completing college careers and are rushing to recruiting stations to offer their services to Uncle Sam. Right or wrong, God bless them for their spirit. They have the stuff that will eventually win the war.

One of the first presidents to appear before a student body following the historic events of December 7, was President James of Ohio University. To a gathering that packed Alumni Memorial Auditorium, he spoke, in part, as follows:

In the most serious crisis confronting our country since the Civil War, the question uppermost in the minds of everyone is, "How can I help?" There is no division, there is no confusion, there is no hesitation concerning the goal. There is uncertainty concerning how each individual can best serve.

This uncertainty is, perhaps, most distressing and most pressing in the minds of our college students, especially among the men. What is their duty, or obligation, or privilege?

Sober thought and sane judgment are imperative if the answer is to be the correct one. Hysteria of any kind can never provide the best solution.

College students are of the age where action is always more welcome than thought, where the dramatic is more appealing than the routine, and where patriotic enthusiasm is most burning. The suspicion of being in any way a slacker in a time of national emergency is the most intolerable of all to college students.

And yet, the most obvious solution of the emotional strain, namely, to enlist forthwith in the armed forces, may not be the most patriotic, because not the most helpful to the country the training of our officers in the armed forces.

The Selective Service Act now in force recognizes that principle. Many thoughtful leaders in our national affairs believe the Selective Service Act should have given greater recognition to the importance of college trained men in the long range national defense program. The Dominion of Canada, after more than two years of actual war, keeps its students in the Universities for the entire duration of their courses, provided only that the students are doing an acceptable job.

The main reason why deferment was not provided for college students as a whole until the termination of their courses was the fear that to the unformed this would look like making such students a privileged class. It was a question of morale as well as a question of sound policy.

The Selective Service Law as at present written, or as amended hereafter, expresses the national policy. Under it men are called when their turns come. No one could, should or would escape that obligation when it arises.

Meanwhile, however, students have a real obligation to continue with their college work, provided only that they do an acceptable job. Without the leaders trained by colleges we can hope neither to win the war nor to win the peace after the war.

The same considerations, exactly, apply to our faculties. Without students and faculties there could be no colleges. Without colleges the national safety and the future of our country and of the world would be endangered. To the extent that colleges and universities are crippled by the departure of students and faculty—to that extent is the larger welfare of the nation endangered.

Following President James on the convocation program, Dean Irma E. Voigt told the student body that regardless of unpredictable events to come, "the greater part of the lives of young people will be spent in reconstruction of a new order."

in the long run. And in this war the "long run" is obviously going to be the determining factor.

College education justifies itself in these times primarily from the point of view of training leaders: leaders in science, leaders in statesmanship, and leaders in action in time of war and in postwar reconstruction and in times of peace. That is recognized by every authoritative person in public service from the President of the United States down. The recognition of that fact is found in the provisions of our Civil Service Laws, in the support given to higher education by the United States Government, and in

Professor of Spanish Translated Famous "Stop Fighting" Message

Dr. Victor Whitehouse (see front cover), professor of Spanish at Ohio University since 1917, and the first to hold that professorship, was born in Troy, N. Y., of parents who came from Worcestershire, England. He holds an A.B. and an A.M. degree from Columbia University, and an A.M. and a Ph.D. degree from Harvard University. He has taught three summer sessions at Columbia and one year in Harvard College. The summer of 1936 was spent in study at the University of Mexico.

Before he had completed the first year of his service at Ohio University, Dr. Whitehouse was called to the army in the First World War. He served until the Spring of 1919 with the 318th Field Signal Battalion to which he was attached as interpreter. During the late Summer and Autumn of 1918, his outfit participated in the assault on the Hindenberg Line as a part of the Second American Army Corps. On November 11, he was awakened at six o'clock in the morning by an emissary from the commanding officer asking for a translation of the now famous message that had just come from Marshall Foch, stating that fighting would cease at eleven o'clock that morning. Since this day happened to be Dr. Whitehouse's birthday, he felt as if he were receiving a personal message from the French generalissimo. Following the Armistice and prior to his return to the United States, he taught French and directed the educational program of the soldiers in his district.

This popular member of the Romance Languages department has served on the Campus Affairs Committee for fifteen years, being, with Dean of Women Irma E. Voigt, an original member of the group. He has also served as chairman of the local Rhodes Scholarship Committee, chairman of the Committee on Distinguished Visitors, chairman of the Freshman Week Committee, chairman of the Grill Executive Board, member of the Graduate Council, and as associate dean of men. He is a former president of the Modern Languages Division of the Ohio College Association.

The study of Spanish at Ohio University has increased greatly in popularity since it was first added to the curriculum. At the present time there are approximately five hundred students on and off the campus taught by a staff of six instructors teaching either full time or part time in the field of Spanish.

In 1924, Dr. Whitehouse married Miss Helen B. Hockenberry, a former member of the French department at Ohio University. They have one son, Richard, now a student in the Athens Junior High School.

Northern Ohio Alumni Carrying On Active Program of Meetings

Dean of Men Laurence W. Lange was the speaker at the November meeting of the Ohio University Bobcat Club in Cleveland. Besides the address by the campus guest, there were motion pictures of two of the 1941 football games. The group's annual stag banquet will be held on January 26 with Don C. Peden, director of athletics and head football coach, as the speaker.

The Ohio University Women's Club of Akron held a luncheon meeting at the Woman's City Club on November 29, with 25 members and two guests present. Dr. Lavinia Warner, '18, superintendent of Blossom Hill School at Brecksville, spoke on "Problems of Our Children." Booklets containing the program for the year and the names and addresses of the members were distributed. The next meeting will be held on January 24.

Prof. C. N. Mackinnon will be the speaker at a meeting of the Canton chapter on January 17. The officers of this recently reorganized group are

Two-Year Courses Offered In Co-Operation With U. S. Program

"So Depart That Daily Thou Mayest Better Serve Thy Fellowman Thy Country and Thy God." Thus reads the inscription which you see on the gateway as you leave the campus of Ohio University. In the spirit of that injunction, and in order that its students may better comply with it, the university has expanded its two-year elective study plan to include curricula leading to the preparation of qualified workers now needed to meet an acute shortage of such persons in the national emergency, particularly in war production industries.

The newly organized courses are a part of the Educational, Engineering, Science, Management Divisions Training Program mapped out last fall by the United States Office of Education. The special two-year study programs offered at Ohio University include secretarial studies, chemistry, physics, radio and electronics, aerial photography, camouflage techniques, production control, accounting, direction of dramatics and entertainment programs, and speech correction. The curricula are designed particularly for those persons, men or women, who wish only two years of university work before going into industry or entering the armed forces through the Selective Service Act.

In facilitating this study, Ohio University is waiving certain of its University College requirements to permit the greater specialization demanded. Graduation from an accredited high school is the only requirement for entrance. Credit will be allowed any student who wishes to continue his studies toward the four-year baccalaureate degree after completion of any of the special two-year curricula.

Inquiries concerning these courses should be addressed to Dr. E. A. Hansen, Dean, University College, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

Robert H. Marriott, '29, president, and Mrs. Earle Zinn (Laverne Matthew, '28), secretary-treasurer.

The Tenth Anniversary Dinner of the Ohio University Women's Club of Youngstown will be held at Raver's on January 21. Elizabeth Lowmiller, '26, 2-yr., is chairman of the committee in charge of preparations for the dinner.

Athens Sculptor Gains Wide Reputation for Wood Work

METEORIC is seldom the word for describing the rise to fame of those who court the Muses of the fine arts. Slowly and gradually do the products of their creative genius come to the attention of the world's art lovers.

By such degrees has the work of John Rood, Athens sculptor, come to enjoy an enviable reputation among critics, collectors, and just plain folks.

No longer obscure, Sculptor Rood's name and accomplishments will appear in five outstanding directories during the coming year: Who's Who in Art, Who's Who in the Western Hemisphere, Who's Who in America, Who's Who in Music, and Who's Who in Ohio.

Although not an alumnus of Ohio University, Mr. Rood is the husband of an Ohioan, the former Miss Mary Frances Lawhead, '26, and he maintains many friendly contacts with the school.

Skilled as a painter, a writer, and a pianist, John Rood finds his greatest satisfaction in wood sculpture. In his studio at the rear of his home on Morris Avenue he has turned out some 200 figures during the seven years of his artistic career. The studio, a large room which would be of interest to any craftsman, is dominated by a mural, in full-life dimensions, of Paul Bunyan, mythical wood-chopper of the Northwest, who Mr. Rood thinks might well be taken as the patron saint of all workers in wood. Two of his earliest creations are pictured on this page. They are "The Patriarch" and "John Henry." Both were done in mahogany. Of the former, a decorative head depending mainly upon lineal design for its effectiveness, he critically says, "It is tight in handling and lacks vitality." The second piece is one of his folk-music series. "Anybody familiar with the folk-lore of the South is especially fond of John Henry," states Mr. Rood. "This is of course, John Henry as a boy—before his more incredible feats of strength and his equally incredible amours." Oak, ebony, and walnut are other wood media for his artistry.

During the past year, Mr. Rood has, by invitation, held one-man exhibitions of his sculpture at Oglebay Institute, Wheeling, W. Va.; Butler Art Institute, Youngstown, Ohio; Art Center, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Georgette Passedoit Gallery, New York City; Art Center, Montclair, N. J.; Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y.; Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio; and in Huntington, W. Va., and in Ashland, Ky. Under the sponsorship of the American Association of University Women, a group of his pieces has been circulating as a travelling exhibition in universities and colleges in Ohio, Kansas, and Oklahoma during the current year. Next year this exhibition will appear in Colorado and other western states.

During 1941 Rood has exhibited his work in group shows held by the British Art Center in New York City, at the Columbus (Ohio) Art League (where his work was awarded first prize in sculpture in 1940, and special honorable mention in 1941), and during National Art Week in Washington, D. C. Two years ago his sculpture was at one time in simultaneous exhibition in New York City and Los Angeles.

Recently, at midnight, Rood received a telephone call from Tom Fisdale, who is connected with the newspaper P-M, in New York City. He wanted to know whether or not a piece of sculpture, "Agitation," was still for sale, and where it was. He wanted to purchase it as a Christmas gift for the publisher of his paper, and he had to have it the following day. The piece of sculpture happened to be in California, but Mr. Rood said he would do his best to effect delivery. He called his friend, Pauline Wanson Townsend, '29, in Hollywood, who said she would get it on the morning plane if possible. A wire followed from Mrs. Townsend saying that it had made the 9:00 a.m. plane and would be in New York on Wednesday morning, as desired.

After a lapse of ten or fifteen years, Mr. Rood has taken up painting again. One of his canvases has just been accepted by the jury of the Columbus Art League, and it is possible that next year he may have a New York exhibition of painting, as well as his annual sculpture show. He says that he enjoys painting as relaxation from sculpture, though as a medium it is not so interesting to him. "It's good practice, however, as it freshens up one's feeling for the roundness of sculpture as opposed to the flatness of painting."

A little volume, "Wood Sculpture," which would be of interest and inspiration to every beginning artist, was published by Rood last year. The Hyperion Press is considering the publishing of a monograph in 1942.

CHILDREN from all parts of southeastern Ohio who are handicapped by stuttering, lisping, or some other form of speech impediment, come to the Ohio University Speech Clinic to receive the expert attention of Dr. Ruth E. Beckey, head of the clinic and instructor in dramatic art and speech. In difficult cases, Dr. Beckey uses a moto-kinesthetic technique, placing her fingers on a child's lips to direct the sounds. To help a child with delayed speech to pronounce the "ka" in "cat" she uses one thumb and fore-finger to push up his chin and then releases it for the explosion of the "k" sound while the other thumb and fore-finger hold his mouth open for the "a" sound. For "t," she puts the tip of her finger on his upper lip beneath the nose to suggest to the child where to place the tongue. Thus in three steps she works out the word "cat."

THE OHIO University Christmas convocation, sponsored by the Student Council, was held in Alumni Memorial Auditorium on December 17. The program, almost entirely musical, included organ numbers by Newman Powell, Athens; solos by Louise Rose, East Liverpool; three selections by the Sigma Alpha Iota trio composed of Alice Maccombs and Virginia Segale, Athens, and Lena Adams, Dayton; two numbers by a brass quartet directed by Mr. Curtis W. Janssen; and groups of selections by the Men's Glee Club and the Women's Glee Club. The biblical Christmas story from the gospel of St. Luke was read by Florence Szuba, Cleveland. Folk dancing by students of Miss Charlotte LaTourrette, and the singing of carols by the glee clubs and audience completed the program.

ACCORDING to a story in the New York Post, the Bobcat football eleven was one of the teams considered for participation in the Sun Bowl game in El Paso, Texas, January 1.

MORE THAN one thousand women attended the Women's League musical comedy, "For Women Only," in Memorial Auditorium on December 10. Skits, impersonations, and a "Cavalcade" were highlights of the program. The musical cavalcade depicted the growth of the Women's League from 1913 to the present time. The show was written and directed by Norma Gibbs, Fremont, and Sue Mahrer, Cleveland Heights.

DELTA SIGMA CHI, local Methodist men's group, has become affiliated with Delta Sigma Theta, national Methodist fraternity. The fraternity has 16 chapters, most of which are in the Middle West. The

THE COLLEGE of Applied Science expects to offer a four-year curriculum for the training of Printing Administrators, beginning next spring. Students pursuing this course will receive training in the business management and administration of printing establishments as well as practical laboratory work in composition and printing.

HOW TO EAT abundantly on $1.68 a week per girl, is being demonstrated by five members of Kappa Beta, Christian church sorority, in their co-op home at 57 Franklin Avenue. Mrs. J. A. Wharton, housemother, and the girls plan weekly menus and cook in teams of two on a schedule arranged according to individual class programs. The girls admit that frequent contributions from home help to keep the budget under control.

"BUENOS NOCHES," says Dr. Victor Whitehouse. "Buenos Noches," reply the 24 students in his adult, after-hours class in Spanish as they drop into his classroom each Monday night to reveal what progress they have made in their studies since the last meeting. The class, sponsored by the local branch of the American Association of University Women, includes Dean Irma E. Voigt, Home Economics Director Grace Steinger, several townspersons, and a number of secretaries and other staff members of university offices. The course is not for credit but for education and enjoyment. There are no examinations, and the members may have as many cuts as they wish.

MEMBERS of the Ohio University Board of Trustees, meeting in Athens November 29, voted to proceed with plans for a new chemical and research laboratory building on the site which has been cleared just east of Science Hall, with three above-ground stories and a basement. The cost is estimated at about $300,000. The money is available in the university building fund, having been appropriated by the state legislature this year. It is hoped to have detailed plans of the building ready by January 10.

APPOINTMENT of Charles F. Poston, Charleston, Ill., to the position of instructor in economics has been announced by President James. Mr. Poston received a baccalaureate degree from Eastern Illinois Teachers College and a master's degree from the University of Illinois. He has been doing work toward a doctorate at the latter institution for the past two years.

DR. N. PAUL HUDSON, chairman of the department of bacteriology in the College of Medicine at Ohio State University and a brother of Ohio University's Health Service director, Dr. E. H. Hudson, addressed members of the Athens County Medical Society at a dinner meeting on December 9. The speaker returned from England last August after a year spent there as a member of the Rockefeller Foundation committee. In the business session which followed the address, Dr. Byron Danford, '21, president-elect, was advanced to the presidency of the society.

JULIO SOUSA, a freshman from Panama and a pre-dental student, celebrated his twenty-first birthday on December 15, and most any day now he expects to be called home to Panama City for service in the army. Sousa has a sister and two brothers in universities in the United States, all of them studying medicine. Gloria Parades, an Ohio University sophomore, is a fellow countryman and also a fellow townsman of Senor Sousa.

FOR THE first time in ten years, the women's varsity debate teams failed to place high in the Ohio Inter-Collegiate Debate Conference Championships. This year, however, the Ohio girls placed fourth, with top honors going to Kent State. The Ohio University reserve team tied for first place with Capital and Ohio Wesleyan in the Class B Championship.

THE OHIO University Service Bureau is a department maintained by the university for the purpose of providing the following services: stenography, typing, duplicating (hectograph and mimeograph), mailing, miscellaneous clerical, poster printing, and bulletin board maintenance. The services of the bureau are available to faculty members, students, and university organizations. In addition to the full-time supervisor, Nona L.

George, '38, the service bureau staff includes two regular part-time stenographers, twelve N.Y.A. students, eight part-time students who work as they are needed at peak periods, and four secretarial practice students.

KAPPA DELTA PI, a society for the recognition of high scholastic attainment, primarily, although not exclusively, for men and women enrolled in the College of Education whose chosen profession is in the field of education, has announced a fall selection of 27 members, 10 men and 17 women. Those honored: Olga Yaroshuk, Cleveland; Mary Eileen Fohl, Bolivar; Joan Parks, Lancaster; Betty Allen, Norwich; Harriet Craun, Mantua; Thomas Anderson, Freeport; Janeth Dunnigan, Lakewood; Phyllis Kuder, Bowling Green; Jack Wiegman, East Cleveland; Herbert Berns, Cleveland; Joan Huck, Lowell; Ruth Nickerson, Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Edith Beck, Youngstown; Robert Hamilton, Cumberland; Vivian Moore, Armstrongs Mills; Emma Jean Mossbarger, Washington, C. H.; Frank Szalay, Toledo; Annabelle Weymueller, Glouster; Harmon Tidd, Ashtabula; Kurt Bohnsack, Cleveland; Joseph Lamberti, Steubenville; Robert Smith, Akron; Dorothy Cannell, Cleveland; Jean Crawford, Athens; Bruce Price, Logan; Josephine Flower, Franklin; and Elfrieda Pruitt, New Boston.

THE SETTINGS for the Ohio University Theatre productions such as that of "The Male Animal" illustrated below are based upon extensive preparation in the classroom and laboratory. The courses in the technical elements of stage production offered by the School of Dramatic Art provide thorough training in the specialized field of design in the theatre. Study begins with the elementary principles of theatrical design and proceeds through the construction and painting of stage scenery, to the making of working drawings and the model set, finally culminating in the designing of actual settings which will be used in the University Theatre productions.

ONE OF THE favorite spots for music lovers on the Ohio University campus during the noon hour is Memorial Auditorium, where each day from 12:45 to 1:45 p.m. is presented a program of recorded music of the great masters. These programs are drawn from a library of 136 volumes containing over 400 recordings and are reproduced on a fine Capehart Phonograph, both of these items a gift to the University from the Carnegie Foundation in 1934. Included in the collection are recordings of representative works by composers of all periods, from Palestrina to George Gershwin.

THE JUNIOR PROM queen for 1942 will be selected by George Petty, artist for Esquire magazine, from pictures of the candidates provided by the Prom committee. Two pictures of each candidate, one in formal and one in informal attire, will be sent to the eastern artist-illustrator.

MORTAR BOARD, Torch, the Men's Union, and the Student Council cooperated to stage a drive for Red Cross funds on December 2.

South Carolina Biologist Waging War on Mosquitoes in His Area

Dr. Alpheus Wesley Blizzard, '13 (see picture on page 11), acting director of the health and sanitary division of the South Carolina Public Service Authority, has been acclaimed for his work in making the area of the Santee-Cooper hydro-electric and navigation project a healthier place in which to live. He directs the extensive war now being waged by the authority on the mosquito scourge and has made an extensive study in hydro-biology of the aquatic vegetation in the basin.

Dr. Blizzard is a native of Ohio and a direct descendant of the famous English surgeons of that name, members of the Royal Society of London.

After graduating from Ohio University he earned a master's degree at Cornell University and a doctorate at Columbia University. Further postgraduate work was pursued at the University of Chicago and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University.

Dr. Blizzard first taught at the Iowa State Agricultural College, and for ten years thereafter was professor of biology at New York University, where he was also a member of the faculty of the graduate school. During the summers he was a member of the research staff of the Cold Spring Harbor Marine Laboratories. He went to the South Carolina Public Service Authority in 1938 from Coker College, at Hartsville, S. C., where he had been professor of biology for ten years.

The South Carolinian is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a former president of the South Carolina Academy of Science, and is a member of a number of scientific bodies including the Botanical Society of America, American Public Health Association, American Society of Tropical Medicine, National Malaria Commission, Sigma Xi, and Beta Lambda Sigma. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity. His contributions to scientific magazines of the nation have brought him wide recognition.

In 1919, he married Miss Ethel Lewes of London, England. The Blizzards have two children, Ethel Jane and Alpheus Wesley, Jr. (pictured with his father on page 11). The son attended The Citadel, military college of South Carolina, for three years then transferred to the University of South Carolina where he is now a member of the senior class. On December 9, the day that war was declared upon Japan, he enlisted in the Navy Air Corps. The daughter is an alumna of the University of South Carolina where she is now pursuing graduate work. She, too, has just enlisted in an auxiliary unit of the air corps.

Mayor of Florida City Celebrates Eightieth Birthday November 30

Rev. Dr. Elmer A. Dent, '88 retired minister and mayor of Belleview, Fla., celebrated his 80th birthday on November 30. The celebration, a surprise affair, was participated in by a large number of the citizens of the Southern city.

Three years ago last June, Dr. Dent attended the 50th anniversary reunion of his class at Ohio University. Last summer he returned to New Haven, Conn., for the 50th anniversary reunion of his class at the Yale Divinity School. On April 19, 1943, Dr. and Mrs. Dent hope to give appropriate observance to a golden wedding anniversary.

For years, Dr. Dent was pastor of churches in New York City and New Haven and for five years was area secretary under Bishop L. B. Wilson of the Methodist Church. He retired from active ministerial service in 1935.

In speaking to his Belleview guests upon the occasion of his birthday, the octogenarian said that it had been his rule and philosophy of life to "revere God, love folks, and keep a sense of humor."

Naval Reserve Permits College Men to Complete School Work

To meet the demand for officers of a rapidly expanding navy, the United States Bureau of Navigation has just announced the reopening of the V-7 Reserve Midshipman Program which will enable promising college men to remain in school until they develop sufficient ability to qualify for the naval training program. Under the new set-up, juniors and seniors in college may enlist for inactive duty until they have completed their collegiate studies.

Educational qualifications for the reserve midshipman classification include a college degree from an accredited university or college, with at least two one-semester courses of college mathematics. A course in plane trigonometry must also have been taken either in high school or college. Juniors and seniors who are interested in the proposition may enlist prior to graduation, provided they submit a certificate from the registrar of the school attended indicating that upon graduation they will have met the educational requirements. Under such conditions, they will be permitted to finish their college training.

In addition to the educational requirements, these college men must not be less than 19 years of age, or over 28. They must be native-born citizens of the United States, be of good repute in their community, be unmarried on date of their enlistment, and agree not to marry prior to completion of reserve midshipman training.

A similar program is to be adopted for the V-5 training program for aviation cadets.

Officers Meeting Well Attended

All four of the major officers and five of the seven members of the executive committee of the Ohio University Alumni Association were present at the annual fall meeting of the officers and committeemen held November 1 in the Alumni Office.

The officers present were: Noble C. Shilt, Washington, D. C., president; C. Don McVay, vice president; Clark E. Williams, Athens, secretary; and W. H. Fenzel, treasurer. Committeemen in attendance were: Chairman Grosvenor S. McKee, Meadville, Pa.; Milton D. Hughes, Athens; Mrs. Grace Bateman Rucker, Westerville; Dr. Rush Elliott, Athens; and Arthur L. Moler, Cincinnati.

WHILE THE mercury in the "won" column for the current basketball season doesn't stand at a very high level—.225, or to the non-mathematically-minded, one out of four starts—it should be remembered that Coach W. J. Trautwein is starting with an almost entirely new team and the season is yet early.

That this year's varsity court squad will reach the heights of glory attained by last year's "Big Six" is very much to be doubted, but that they will finish the season with a creditable record is a wholly warranted belief.

Of the squad of 10 men which Trautwein took to New York last spring for the Madison Square Garden tournament, only three are on hand. Pete Lalich, Cleveland, is the only regular back, and the others are Robert "Fizz" Miller, Strasubrg, and Bobby Wren, Cleveland. Of the 16 men on the current roster, half are sophomores and only three are seniors.

Besides Lalich, Miller, and Wren, the other candidates for the varsity squad are: Jack Winfield, Girard; Bill Ditrich, Euclid; Harlan Hosch, Danville, Ill.; Sidney Reinfield, Newark, N. J.; Jack Mlakar, Cleveland; Jim Calabria, Cambridge; Jake Shiff, Fostoria; Kenneth Walters, New Lexington; John Born, Hamilton; Charles Fulks, Dunkirk; Joe Davis, Stamford, Conn.; William Ross, Marietta; and Roland Bauer, Cuyahoga Falls

In the opening game, which Ohio took from Marietta, 48-46, the Bobcats displayed an expected tendency toward the erratic. Miller was the leading point maker for both teams, with 20 marks to his credit. On a Christmas holiday road trip the Bobcats met Mt. Union College, Akron University, and Youngstown College on successive nights, returning home with nary a scalp.

In the Mt. Union contest the Ohioans trailed for all but a brief period and finally had to settle for a 58-41 defeat. The next evening the Green and White boys lost the decision to the Akron Zippers, 47-40. The Bobcats had out scored their opponents in the field, but lost their advantage in failures to make good at the foul line.

Just to make Christmas a merrier event for the Youngstown Penguins the Green and White lads put a 57-46 victory in the socks of the Mahoning Valley boys. The Bobcats were out-classed in the initial period, but settled down to outplay and outscore the home team in the second half. The rally came too late, however.

Remaining on the Bobcat schedule are 16 games: Jan. 3, Xavier, abroad; Jan. 6, Findlay, at home; Jan. 13, Dayton, at home; Jan. 17, Miami, at home; Jan. 20, Ohio Wesleyan, at home; Jan. 31, Cincinnati, abroad.

Feb. 4, Muskingum, at home; Feb. 6, Miami, abroad; Feb. 7, Dayton, abroad; Feb. 10, Youngstown, at home; Feb. 14, Evansville (Ind.) College, at home; Feb. 17, Cincinnati, at home; Feb. 19, Marietta, abroad; Feb. 21, Ohio Wesleyan, abroad; Feb. 24, Xavier, at home; Feb. 28, Toledo, abroad.

ONE FELLOW who refuses to become too glum over Ohio's basketball prospects is Larry Newman, assistant sports editor of the Columbus Dispatch. Writing as a guest columnist in a recent issue of the Ohio University Post Newman said:

"Ohio University has been fortunate down through the last 20-odd years in having smart, even-tempered coaches who have the athletic sense to accept graduation, ineligibility, and other disappointing incidents as a matter of course. The Bobcat coaches have produced great teams year-in and year-out. And when great teams like the 'Big-Six' and the Art Lewis, et al., grid regimes pass on, somehow, the Peden, Trautwein and Co. combine comes up with something new. Something new to offset the old. And that's the way it should be in sports. Today a hero, but tomorrow those newspaper clippings wouldn't buy a cup of coffee at Joe's Poison Place down by the wharf."

Coach Arthur E. Lewis

ART LEWIS, '36, referred to by Columnist Newman, and who was named on the "Little All-America" team in his senior year, has recently accepted the line coach job at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., after several seasons as a line coach and tackle for the Cleveland Rams, professional football team. Lewis starred in the traditional East-West game on New Year's Day in 1936.

Other former Bobcat grid stars who were members of the Rams during the past season were Chet Adams, '39, and Len Janiak, '40.

Adams has just been named by Commissioner Elmer Layden of the National Professional Football League as one of the players to compose the All-Star squad which will meet the champion Chicago Bears at the New York Polo Grounds on Jan. 4. One of Chet's opponents will likely be Bob Snyder, '36, a halfback who kicked three field goals to help the Bears win the pro league championship from the favored Green Bay Packers. The proceeds of the New York game will be given to the Naval Relief Society, an organization which aids the families of men killed or injured in the navy.

FRANK SZALAY, Toledo, Bobcat center, was named on the All-Ohio gridiron team chosen last month by the Associated Press. Bobcats Carl Jamison, Ada, tackle and John Fekete, Findlay, back, won berths on the A-P's second squad, while Bill Heinz, Cincinnati, another back, landed on the third string. Bob Schminky, Willoughby, end, received honorable mention.

Here and There Among the Alumni

From Dorothy Scott, instructor in home economics at Ohio State University and a granddaughter of the late DR. W. H. SCOTT, '62, former Ohio University president, the Alumni Office has recently received a bundle of letters, programs, reports, and manuscripts, which were gleaned from the deceased educator's files. All of the material relates in some way or another to President Scott's association with Ohio University.

The beautiful "Christmas Carol" in the center of this column was written by MRS. MARGARET KIRKENDALL CAMPBELL, '83, Boulder, Colo., Ohio University's oldest living woman graduate. It reflects the charming and sweet personality of a lovely lady. Those who are privileged to read Mrs. Campbell's all too infrequent

A CHRISTMAS CAROL

Few in life's race attain the laurel crown
Take in the running meed of high renown;
But many win a wreath of "bittersweet"
For brave unflinching struggle yet more meet.

So one for you I twine, oh, friend of mine!
See how the red hearts glow with life's rich wine

The lovely fruit is cupped with gold
Fair chalice in your hands to hold.

The red is for the heart's outpouring love—
No thought of self—but like to His above;
The golden cup is for achievement's goal
The high ideals of a striving soul.

The sweetest, bravest, holiest—sent to men
That they might with Him rise and live again
Did wear a crown of thorns for us earth born,
Oh, let us joyful be this Christmas morn!

—Mrs. Margaret Kirkendall Campbell.

communications agree that even the most common-place statements have an air of benediction about them. The bittersweet referred to in her Carol is the woody vine with the yellow and orange berries with which Mrs. Campbell was familiar in her Ohio childhood.

Mrs. Julius G. Stammel (FLORA CONNER, '04), Miami, Fla., is caring for her aged mother, Mrs. J. R. Conner, formerly of Athens, who has been confined to her bed for the past year with a fractured hip. Mrs. Stammel is a registered nurse.

Through her brother-in-law DR. ROBERT E. NYE, '09, 2-yr., Charleston, W. Va., osteopath, late of London, England, the Alumni Office has been informed of the cause of death of Mrs. Carlos Nye (CHRISTINE LAW, '15) who died, June, 1919, in Buenos Aires, Argentina. The hitherto unrecorded fact is that Mrs. Nye died of cerebral meningitis which was one of the complications which followed a sinus operation. Her husband, who attended Ohio University in 1901 and 1911, is an osteopath.

DR. JOHN J. RICHESON, '10, former dean of the state normal college at Ohio University, now the College of Education, and later superintendent of the Youngstown public schools, resides at North Jackson where he is engaged in the insurance business.

After having been out of touch with ARTHUR B. GRAY, '12, 2-yr., since 1928, the Alumni Office has recently learned that he is manager of a Firestone store in Ft. Wayne, Ind. Like every other retailer of auto supplies, Manager Gray is a bit short on rubber tires these days.

The accidental death, resulting from a rifle shot, of Richard Hughes, 18-year-old Ohio University freshman and son of ATTORNEY MILTON D. HUGHES, '12, and Mrs. Hughes, Athens, was a shock to the entire community as well as a grievous loss to the parents and sister of the young man. The accident occurred while the youth was cleaning a .22 calibre rifle in his room. He had attended Athens High School and Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., where he participated in a variety of school activities. He was expected to engage in the study of law.

Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, professor of journalism at Columbia University and author of "Life Begins at Forty," was a speaker at Ohio University during the month of October. Dr. Pitkin is a third cousin of RAYMOND M. SLUTZ, '12, Athens, a former associate professor of English at Ohio University. One of the Pitkin forebears married ROBERT G. WILSON, third president of Ohio University.

JESSIE M. TRESHAM, '14, A.M. '36, instructor in English in the high school at Harrisville, W. Va., was recognized as the "Teacher of the Month," with a picture and biographical sketch, in the October issue of the West Virginia School Journal.

ARTHUR A. BRAINERD, '15, Norwood, Pa., director of lighting service for the Philadelphia Electric Co., is currently in the nation's engineering news as the developer and collaborator, with a duPont engineer, of the principal of three-dimensional seeing. In its practical aspects, this is a system of painting industrial machines to improve depth of vision. His research was described in a paper which he presented at the Illuminating Engineering Society convention last September. Mr. Brainerd was the American representative to the International Congress of Illumination Engineers meeting at The Hague, Holland, in 1939. He has received a number of prizes and outstanding recognitions for his research and developmental activities. The Philadelphia engineer is the husband of the former Miss ZILLA KNOLL, '14, and the father of BETTY BRAINERD, '39.

O. E. McCLURE, '16, and WILSON K. SMITH, '25, both of Athens, were re-elected to their respective positions as president and secretary-treasurer, of the Ohio Division of the Izaak Walton League of America at the division's 19th annual convention held in Columbus early this month. President McClure is an associate professor of electrical engineering and physics at Ohio University, while Secretary Smith is associated with the home office of the McBee Company in Athens.

Among the many alumni who have sent sons or daughters to Ohio University as freshmen this year are Mrs. Ernest C. White (TERESA CARUTHERS, '17), Charleston, W. Va. (daughter); DR. ASIA H. WHITACRE, '22, and Mrs. Whitacre (LENA MAE SAMS, '21), Chesterhill (son); and Mrs. W. Grant Scott (HALLIE HOOPMAN, '18), Westerville (daughter).

HELEN E. BOYLES, '19, 2-yr., North Lewisburg, sailed Aug. 29 for Rosario, Argentina, to teach commercial subjects in a mission school of the Methodist Church. Miss Boyles returned to the United States in November, 1940, after 14 years of service as an educational missionary in Korea. Her last location in the Far East was at Pyongyang, where she was supervisor of primary schools for 9 years.

Central Ohio friends of ESTHER BERKSHIRE, '19x, will be interested to know that she has opened a tea room, The Terrace, at 1146 Maple Avenue, in Zanesville. Miss Berkshire operated a tea room in Washington, D. C., for a number of years and later was foods director for the Y. W. C. A. in Detroit. The Terrace Tea Room is located at the junction of

Charles B. Richardson

State Routes 77 and 146. It is a beautiful old home which Miss Berkshire has furnished with some very interesting antique pieces. Miss Berkshire invites Ohioans to stop in for meals or merely for a visit.

OSA WAMSLEY, '20, 2-yr., retired from classroom activities last year after teaching for more than a score of years in the Youngstown public schools. She is now living at her home near Otway.

When Ohio's new group medical service plan law became effective on August 1, the president of the Ohio State Medical Association appointed a six-member coordinating committee "to affect a certain degree of uniformity in the plans of organization of the various corporations throughout the state." One of the members of the committee is DR. GEORGE A. WOODHOUSE, '21, Pleasant Hill. This Western Ohio physician's son, George, Jr., is about ready for college, and the campus of his alma mater is under consideration.

Bill Whipple, who will soon finish the aviation technology course at Pasadena Junior College, is "regusted." For weeks he has been practicing with the junior college band in preparation for the Rose Parade and California's gridiron classic, the Rose Bowl Game. Now, because of the little unpleasantness with Japan, the big game has been switched from the Rose Bowl in Pasadena to the stadium of Duke University at Durham, N. C. Oh yes, we forgot to mention, Bill is the son of BYRON E. WHIPPLE, '22, and Mrs. Whipple (FLORA CASE, '17, 2-yr.). Bill's dad is an official of the Pacific Union Marbleite Co. in Los Angeles.

Campus friends of EILEEN WAGNER, '23, have heard nothing as yet concerning the welfare of this teacher in Hawaii. Miss Wagoner is an English instructor in Farrington High School, Honolulu. Since there were relatively few civilian casualties reported, one's hope for the best is fairly well supported by the odds.

Mrs. Mae Paddock Beckert, wife of Associate Professor RALPH F. "SID" BECKERT, '23, Athens, and their little two-year-old daughter, Patsy, had a miraculous escape from serious injury, or worse, when the car driven by Mrs. Beckert was struck and overturned at a street intersection in Athens early this month. Although the car was completely wrecked, a wrenched shoulder sustained by Mrs. Beckert was the only damage to the occupants.

G. HJALMER GUSTAFSON, '25, has been an auditor with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. since 1932. He is at present located in Buffalo, N. Y., and has previously served his company in Pittsburgh, Detroit, and Toledo.

VICTOR K. MILLER, '25, has been transferred from the Indianapolis to the Alliance, Ohio, office of United Co-Operatives, Inc. He is representing his company, which handles farm equipment and supplies in a 10-state area.

The Athens representative in the National Soapbox Derby held in Akron in August, was John Good, son of PETER F. GOOD, '26, and Mrs. Good (THEODORA LAWHAD, '27x). Mr. Good is manager of the Lawhead Press, printers of The Ohio Alumnus and the Ohio University Post. John Good, winner of the Athens Class B title, out-raced Edwin Powell, Class A victor, for the Athens city championship. Racer Powell is a son of NEWMAN M. POWELL, '15, and Mrs. Powell (RUTH WILSON, '15x).

After several years as head of the schools in Chesterhill, Morgan County, B. E. WORKMAN, '27, resigned this fall to accept a position as instructor in biology in Lash High School, Zanesville. He was succeeded in the Chesterhill position by DEWEY F. STONE, '26, formerly head of the Prospect schools.

Upon receiving the October number of The Ohio Alumnus which contained the story of the appointment of President

N. Y., HATHI F. CAMPBELL, '28, has returned to her native state to become executive secretary of the Brooklyn branch of the Y. W. C. A. in Cleveland. Miss Campbell resigned in Troy last June and spent the summer in study at Columbia University where she completed the requirements for a Master's degree in guidance and personnel.

When WILFORD M. MAYLERS, '28, and MRS. MAYLERS, '29, visited the campus last summer, they told friends that they were about to sail for Singapore, now a beleaguered city in the Far East. Nothing is known locally of their present whereabouts. Mr. Mayers is an auditor in the Netherlands East Indies for the Goodyear Rubber Plantations Co.

DR. G. W. BRUGLER, '29, assistant director of administration at University Hospitals, Cleveland, reports that DR. ORLEN B. PATCH, '31, is now a physician associated with the Duluth Clinic in Duluth, Minn.

What was true of a person's occupation in October is not necessarily true in December, as is well known by many of the nation's young men. Early this fall, DR. JOHN E. LUTZ, '29, was a surgeon on the staff of the Mountain State Hospital, a government institution near Charleston, W. Va. He is a member of the Naval Reserve, however, and may at this time be at some far distant post of duty.

HERBERT E. WOOLWEAVER, '30, director of athletics at Sidney High School was this fall elected president of the Miami Valley High School League at its meeting in Hamilton. He expects to receive his Master's degree from Western State College of Colorado, Gunnison, Colo., next summer.

OVID M. McMILLION, '30, at one time an instructor and athletic director in the high school at Fairbanks, Alaska, and now a member of the faculty of the James Ormond Wilson Teachers College, Washington, D. C., is the author of a number of widely recognized books on Alaska. Before taking the Washington position, he was for several years a member of the faculty of Concord State Teachers College at Athens, W. Va.

ROSE YVONNE ZENN, '31, former director of physical education for girls in Ambridge, Pa., is now head of the women's physical education department at State Teachers' College, Frostburg, Md. Dr. Newman A. Wade, who has been a visiting lecturer at Ohio University is one of Miss Zenn's colleagues.

W. RICHARD McCUTCHEON, '32, was awarded the degree of Master of Arts in musicology at New York University on October 15. He is director of music in North High School, Binghamton, N. Y. He was for six years a music supervisor in the high school at Logan, Ohio.

JOHN ALDEN, '32, state editor of the Olean (N. Y.) Times-Herald, mailed the Alumni Office a copy of his paper the other day which contained a "Letter to the Editor" written by an Olean boy who is now a freshman at Ohio University. The letter was full of high praise for Mr.

Alpheus Wesley Blizzard, Jr. and Sr. (Story on Page 8)

James to a "good will ambassadorship" to Sao Paulo, Brazil, GERARD C. POWELL, '27, assistant secretary-treasurer of Neumaticos Goodyear S. A. at Buenos Aires, Argentine subsidiary of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., immediately wrote the Alumni Office as follows: "Being a '27-er I have never had the pleasure of meeting Dr. James, but I would be pleased, should he come to Buenos Aires, to meet him and to give him any attention that his time-off from official duties would permit. So far as I know, Eleanor and I are the only Ohio University graduates in Argentina, at least in Buenos Aires, although our (Goodyear) factory superintendent here, Mr. R. L. PATRICK, tells me he attended Ohio University for two years, prior to World War No. 1, before he transferred to Ohio State University." Mrs. Powell is the former ELEANOR WERNERT, '27. Mr. Patrick attended the university during the years 1914-1917.

Mrs. Fred C. Luchs (EVELYN COULTER, '27), wife of the minister of the Athens Presbyterian Church, is in frequent demand as a speaker throughout the state. Mrs. Luchs is a member of Governor Bricker's Commission on Democracy and is vice president of the Ohio Council of Church Women.

After holding responsible administrative positions in Y. W. C. A. organizations in Toledo, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Troy, Alden's alma mater. Incidentally, John should be credited with having directed a number of Ohio youngsters to the Ohio campus. There are seven such students enrolled at the present time.

The Athens County Lunch Service, under the direction of Mrs. Raymond D. Chapman (HELEN CARL, '33), of the county relief office, is serving noon lunches to approximately four thousand high school and grade school pupils in twenty-four schools.

DR. JAMES R. MAY, '33, and Mrs. May (BETTY FORCE, '33), are residents of Hattiesburg, Miss., the former being a captain in the Army Medical Corps on assignment to Camp Shelby.

J. B. STONE, '33, after several years with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia, Pa., is now secretary and sales manager of Dawley Real Estate, Inc., in Syracuse, N. Y. Mrs. Stone was formerly HAZEL HERSHMAN, '30.

ARTHUR B. BRIGGS, '34, associated for several years with the accounting department of the Glidden Company, large paint and chemicals manufacturing concern in Cleveland, is now treasurer and office manager of Sam Moore & Company, manufacturers of a special type of flooring for automobiles. Treasurer Briggs is the husband of the former VIRGINIA COE, '34.

CLIFFORD H. SELDEN, JR., '35, Clarksburg, W. Va., is an ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve, now on active duty aboard the U. S. S. New Mexico.

JAMES F. POWELL, '35, is sales promotion manager for the Zenith Radio Corp. in Chicago.

HARRIET L. PUTNAM, '35, art supervisor, and Mary Wheeler, a fellow teacher in the Denver, Colo., schools, have recently built a new home in the Colorado capital. It is so situated that views are afforded of many of the snowcapped peaks of the Rocky Mountains. Miss Putnam secured an art supervisor's diploma at Ohio University in 1910 and her baccalaureate degree some 25 years later.

FRANCIS G. KOURI, '36, Nelsonville safety and service director for three and one-half years, has been assigned to Fort Hayes, Columbus, for duty as district signal officer for the Civilian Conservation Corps. Under a recent order, all CCC camps are to be connected by a radio network similar to the system used by the U. S. Army. Mr. Kouri will direct the installation of the systems in all of the camps in Ohio and West Virginia.

Peter Pan Cottage, a unit of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' Orphans Home, for children of pre-school and primary grade age, has a new supervisor who feels as much at home among the miniature furnishings as her pupils. The new director is DOROTHY HILTY, '37, who is a scant four feet tall. She will be a "mother" to 13 girls ranging in age from 4 to 10 years. After majoring in psychology and nursery school work at Ohio University, Miss Hilty received her master's degree in clinical psychology at Ohio State University. FRANCIS M. POLCYN, '41, is another Ohio U. grad in the O. S. & S. O. schools.

BETTY HOWE, '38, has a position in the personnel department of the branch plant of the Radio Corporation of America, in Indianapolis. She had previously been engaged in personnel work for the NYA in Steubenville. Miss Howe received an A. M. degree at Ohio State University last summer.

The Wyoming (Ohio) high school gridiron team, coached by WILLIAM JURKOVIC, '38, former Ohio University three-sport athlete, was one of eight high school teams in Ohio which came through their football seasons undefeated this fall. "Jurk's" squad was not only undefeated, but it was unscored on. The Wyoming coach has served as a counsellor and director of athletics at a boys camp near Ashe-the shelter. The Capitol lights are off and will be off until the danger is over. Black curtains have been put up in the White House. Last Tuesday night, we had a partial blackout, and talk about Washington being dreary! I happened to be up town shopping, but I soon started for home. Last Wednesday, we experienced our first air raid alarm, which wasn't much of a success."

WILLIAM J. MANNING, '39, "joined up" for three years and was sent to the finance office, his choice, at Fort Knox, Ky. He is in the commercial bills section which disburses approximately $3,000,000 a month. "My job," writes Bill, "is auditing invoices, checking contracts, taking discounts, and preparing vouchers for payment." He expects to be assigned soon to field work with an armored division. With Private Manning in the Fort Knox office are GEORGE F. BAIRD, '37, and WILLIAM M. HYNES, '42.

ROBERT W. REIDER, '39, a former editor of the Green and White, is now editor of The Teller, a snappy little house organ "published exclusively by and for City Loan employees." The editorial office is in Lima.

J. HOWARD HOUK, JR., '39, has been promoted from adjuster to unit manager for the Commercial Credit Corporation at Greensburg, Pa. He is in charge of a territory comprising one and one-half counties in western Pennsylvania.

PAUL J. DAY, '39, sports editor of the Middletown Journal, has been named publicity manager for the newly-organized Greater Ohio High School Basketball League of seven members, which has been formed to replace the Southern Ohio Scholastic League. The new league includes Middletown, Portsmouth, Springfield, Dayton (Roosevelt), Lima (Central and South), and Kenton. DENVER D. WOOD, '38, is director of athletics in the Kenton schools.

The young lady taking a critical look at the unfinished canvas on her easel (see picture) is ROSEMARY CRITES, '39, an art supervisor in the Berea public schools. The picture was taken in one of the studios of the School of Painting and Allied Arts at Ohio University. Artist Crites is a sister of NELSON A. CRITES, '33, M.Ed. '40, principal of McArthur High School, and of Mrs. H. E. Sheely (LOUISE CRITES, '22), Hanover, Pa.

MARY LOUISE McCARTNEY, '39, is an instructor in chemistry at the Athens College for Young Women, Athens, Ala.

RALPH E. GARNER, '40, is an accountant, in Cincinnati, with the National Underwriter Co.

WALTER J. PATRYLOW, '40, of Kenilworth, N. J., is a clerk with the Watson-Stullman Co. at Roselle, N. J.

LOIS FAULSTICH, '40, a fellow and graduate counsellor at the University of Indiana last year, is teaching in a junior high school at Glenside, a suburb of Muskegon, Mich.

HAROLD B. ANDERS, '40, is now a pilot with the United Airlines. His professional address is United Airlines Dispatch Office, Boeing Field, Seattle, Wash.

Rosemary Crites

ville, N. C., during the past two summers.

FLORA LOUISE JUETT, '38, a former secretary in the Alumni Office and now a secretary to Congressman Brent Spence, of the 5th Kentucky District, and secretary of the Washington Alumni Chapter, writes interestingly of the situation in the nation's Capitol: "I was in all of the commotion at the Capitol last week and didn't miss a thing. Washington, in general, is rather upset and is taking precautions right and left. We have anti-aircraft guns stationed on quite a few of the larger buildings, and air raid shelters are being built. The one we are most interested in this week is the one in the White House yard. You may remember that the Treasury Building is just across Executive Avenue from the White House and they have that whole street and all the streets around the White House fenced off with a ten-foot fence. Eileen's office [EILEEN HOWARD, '39, who has a secretarial position in the office of Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury Department] faces the White House yard and she gives us a day-by-day description of
